This policy is in line with stable inflation, exchange rate, stable financial system amid higher external pressure which impacted by the rising tension between Russia and Ukraine, and the acceleration of monetary normalization globally. Rupiah depreciated against USD by -0.85% from 14,357 at end of March 2022 to 14,480 at end April 2022. Indonesia's trade balance recorded surplus amounting to USD 4,530mn in March 2022 vs previous month surplus IDR 3,826mn in Feb 2022. The main contributor to trade surplus was from coal export which grew by 124% YoY. In term of expenditure side, the main contributor of the growth was from household consumption which grew by +4.34% yoy in line with the national economic recovery and loosening mobility restriction despite of Omicron Wave. The weakening on Indonesia's bond market was mostly impacted by the global sentiments, as follows: concern over higher inflation globally, the acceleration of monetary tightening by most of central banks, especially FED which they raised the FFR by 50bps on May 2022 to address the impact of higher inflation level, lockdown in China on the back of rising cases, and also the uncertainty when the war will be ended between Russia and Ukraine.
