Manager Commentary

LQ45 rose 5.34% in August, on total return basis, as the market gained confidence on the back of declining new COVID-19 cases. Foreign investors were net buyers for 4 consecutive months. Consumer discretionary sector performed strongly as investors became more optimistic of the economic recovery following the peak of the latest COVID wave back in July. The technology sector, on the other hand, lagged after months of strong gains. Indonesia's 2Q GDP grew 7.07% year-on-year (YoY), outpacing expectation. The beat came on the back of low-base and stronger recovery momentum. Private consumption rebounded 5.9% YoY in the quarter, driven by leisure and service-related consumption such as communication, dining, and hotels. The relaxation of mobility was the key reason on such improvements. Government expenditure also accelerated due to the front-loaded stimulus. On the investment side, the gross fixed capital formation (GFCF) rose +7.5% YoY as machinery demand returned. All-in-all all sectors showed improvements.

Our market trend and momentum assessment of Indonesian stock market weakened and remained in negative territory during August, as sentiment continued to be impacted by surging COVID cases. We have reduced our investment exposure since early August and moved from a full-investment positioning to around 81% equity exposure by the end of the month. The portfolio outperformed the benchmark in the month of August. Positive stock selections in the consumer discretionary and the financial sectors drove the outperformance while the underweight positions in the material sector subtracted from it.
