Manager Commentary

The Fund slightly lagged the benchmark in November. There was significant rotation within markets at a sector and stock level. Stock selection was the main performance factor, especially in the Health Care sector where previous strong performers saw some profit taking. The sector allocation effect was small given the close to benchmark approach to portfolio construction. At a single stock level, a top contributor was Contemporary Amperex Technology (CATL), a global leader in lithium-ion battery development, which reached new all-time highs in the month. The stock – and the electric vehicle (EV) sector overall – was well supported by news of strong battery demand, for example from an American electric vehicle manufacturer's new orders. On the other hand, a top detractor was a Chinese contract research organisation (CRO). The CRO sector as a whole has been quite weak owing to concerns of softer demand with a diminishing contribution from COVID-19 related revenues. Our view is that the company has an under-appreciated backlog of new projects that should sustain growth over the long term.
