Manager Commentary

Global equities retreated over December. Despite a decline in headline inflation rates, sentiment was knocked by a series of hawkish statements from central banks which implied terminal rates may be higher than the markets had priced in. Growth-focused companies in the communication services, consumer discretionary and information technology sectors were among the weakest performers as hopes of a more dovish stance were dashed. Meanwhile, utilities and health care stocks held up the best, helped by their defensive characteristics.

US bonds closed December with negative returns. A rally early in the month was reversed following hawkish statements from the Federal Reserve (Fed) which dashed hopes of a more dovish stance. The yield on the 10-year Treasury bond rose 13 basis points (bps) to just under 3.9%, while the yield on the two-year note also inched higher to close at just above 4.4%.
