Manager Commentary

Asia equity market excluding China rallied further in December on Fed rate cut hopes following soft November inflation data while China and Hongkong equity market posted further corrections as recent data shows China economy remain in contraction with minimal stimulus effort by the government. US Equity market rallied further in December as data showed U.S. inflation cooled further in November, cementing expectations that the Federal Reserves would cut interest rates in March 2024.

Global equities closed 2023 on a strong note, buoyed by the Federal Reserve's more dovish stance with US policymakers forecasting rate cuts over the coming year. The news reinforced investors' belief that rates were now at their peak and inflation had now been tamed. At a sector level, real estate stocks surged, with industrials shares also enjoying solid gains. In contrast, the energy sector weakened as oil and natural gas prices weakened.

US bonds rallied over December, building further on November's robust advance as investors priced in the potential for rate cuts in 2024. The yield on the 10-year Treasury bond fell around 50 basis points (bps) over the month, moving back below 3.9% for the first time since July. Yields on shorter dated bonds also declined, with the two-year yield closing the month at 4.25%, a level last seen in May.
