Manager Commentary

LQ45 rose 0.69% on total return basis in February. Foreign investors turned net buyers for the first time in 3 months, adding USD379m of equities during the period. The amount was, however, inflated by a huge crossing of USD250m in a health services provider. Information technology led as bellwether tech, GOTO, sow strong buying interests. Consumer staple names, on the other hand, was sold down during the period. Indonesia reported 4022 GDP year-on-year (YoY) growth of +5.01%, slightly ahead of expectation.Net exports were the main driver, offsetting the normalization of private consumption after the pent-up demand prior to the Lebrana Holiday. Investments also topered off in the quarter as machinery, equipment demand decelerated. The country posted +0.16% and+5.47% of month-on-month (MoM) and YO' inflation respectively in February. Bank Indonesia (BI) maintained the benchmark rate at 5.75% as the inflation trajectory was in-line with the Central Bank's forecast. Separately, it became more optimistic on the economy as it expects GDP growth to be near the top range of its 4.5-5.37% angein FP33. All in all, the economy appeared to be on a firmer footing. Based on our market trend and fundamental assessment, the overall market outlook of Indonesian equities remained negative during February. Unter we still mainteined an uderweight positioning in equities. The fund underperformed the benchmark in the month of February. Negative stock selections in the monthor february. Negative stock selections in the market and consumer discretionary sectors impacted performance. Energy names in the portfolio offset, however, the negative performance partially.
