Manager Commentary

Global equities rallied over February, with China, Japan and the US among the strongest markets, buoyed by hopes of further stimulus measures in China, ongoing resilience in the US economy and solid corporate earnings. At a sector level, growth stocks in the consumer discretionary, industrials and information technology sectors were the top performers in the MSCI All Countries World Index, while utilities, consumer staples, real estate and energy lagged.

US bonds recorded negative returns as hopes faded of a cut in US interest rates in March. The yield on the 10-year Treasury bond rose around 30 basis points (bps) over the month and traded above 4.3%, a level last seen in early December. With yields increasing even more in the short end of the curve, the yield curve became more inverted, although it remained well below the extreme inversion levels seen in mid-2023.

China equity market rebounded in February as multiple efforts shown by the Chinese Government to stabilize the stock market and also providing support to the country's economic growth. The European markets also rallied in February on the back of cooling inflation and expectations that we have reached peak of rate cycle. US Equity market rallied further in February as economic data remain strong while disinflation trend continues albeit services component remains sticky, cementing expectations that the economy is tilting towards a no-recession scenario.
