Manager Commentary

LQ45 fell -0.54% in price return during March, marking the first month in five to show a negative return. Foreign investors bought another Rp7.8trn (USD506m) worth of equities during the period which included the USD397m crossing in MFIN. On the macro front, the country's trade surplus decelerated to USD867m, much lower than the market's consensus with both exports and imports missing targets. The weakness in export was mostly due to a drop in CPO and ferronickel while the acceleration of imports was driven by capital goods and raw material demands. Bank Indonesia (BI) maintained the benchmark rate at 6%. The Central Bank reiterated its focus on exchange rate stability while ensuring inflation stays within the target band. Separately, the government unveiled plan to increase value-added-tax (VAT) to 12% in '24, brining Indonesia to have one of the highest VAT in the region. Based on our market trend and fundamental assessment, the overall market outlook of Indonesian equities further improved and remained in positive territory. In the model portfolio, a full investment positioning (with 79% in equities) has been maintained during the month. The equity portfolio performed in line with the benchmark the month of March. The overweight positions in banks delivered negative performance, offsetting the positive stock selections in utilities.
