Manager Commentary

Asia markets closed the month with mixed sentiment, where Hong Kong and China market tumbled during the month due to negative sentiment after President Xi Jinping moved to stack his leadership ranks with loyalists, while Yuan remained weakening and closed the month at 7.314 level (+0.12%). Meanwhile, most of other Asian markets ended the month stronger, underpinned by foreign inflows and the expectation of robust 3Q22 results due to stronger demand and normalize raw material prices from the peak level in 2Q22.

US stock market rebounded in October, as most of the investors shifted their focus to the latest round of corporate earnings. According to FactSet, more than half of the companies within the S&P 500 have reported results with overall earnings growth of +2.3% YoY. 3Q22 US GDP also rebounded after 2 consecutive quarters of contraction as slowdown in consumption and a sharp decline in residential investment were more than offset by gains in equipment investment, government spending, and a large boost from trade. Real final domestic demand (GDP ex trade and inventories) grew less strongly by just 0.5%. This week market is expecting another 75bps hike by the Fed but is also hoping for it to be the last 75bps increase as inflation is expected to cool down ahead.
