Manager Commentary

Asia equities slide as sentiment was knocked by rising geopolitical risks in the Middle East. Concerns over the impact of high interest rates and the outlook for global growth also weighed on markets. Chinese and Hong Kong equities retreated further in October, although there were signs that the slowdown in the economy may be stabilizing and that the fall in industrial profits may have bottomed out. Japanese equities lost ground over October as speculation grew that the Bank of Japan (BoJ) would start to normalize monetary policy sooner rather than later. Taiwanese stocks held up relatively well, helped by a positive earnings surprise from chipmaker TSMC which hinted at a possible recovery in smartphone demand. South Korea equities fell sharply, underperforming the broader region. ASEAN markets were mostly weak. Indonesia and the Philippines equities fell the most as central banks in both markets raised rates by 25 basis points during the month. Australian shares retreated as higher-than-expected monthly inflation data sparked fears of further rate hikes from the Reserve Bank of Australia. Meanwhile, Indian equities plunged to a four-month low, as investors considered a series of mixed corporate results. Although India's retail price inflation fell to 5.02% year on year in September, rising oil prices led to concerns over a potential surge in domestic inflation.
